his feet about six inches apart, his weight resting mostly on the back leg, ready to step in any direction that he may desire. Wagner assumes an awkward, ungainly position at the plate, with feet far apart, knees slightly bent, and in a half crouch, depending mostly upon the wonderful strength of his forearms and shoulders to drive the ball. from the candle, with hands varying from four to six inches apart. In this way he gets better control of the bat for his quick, decisive chops, and at the same time he can watch balls close to him before starting his swing.

Wagner varies the position of his hands, sometimes swinging from the extreme end, at other times choking the bat up close. In the act of hitting the ball, Cobb drives his body forward off his back foot by switching his weight from one foot to the other, so that the upper part In this way he concentrates his whole strength in his swing, using his arms only to guide the bat, except in the last decisive chop. He develops the propelling power in his body and uses his arms as the final force of transmission. Wagner, on the other hand, does not step far, depending more upon the marvelous muscular development of his forearms and shoulders to drive the ball. He switches his weight from the back foot to the front more through power developed by his abdominal muscles than in the direct act of stepping into the ball. He can watch the ball as close to him as Cobb can, because of his additional muscular development. Cobb has a decided advantage over Wagner in the fact that he bats lefthanded, in this way being from four to six feet closer to first base, and in hit ting to right field is in his natural stride as soon as he swings. ### OGDEN HIGH TOO STRONG FOR ALL HALLOWS BOYS

(Special to The Herald-Republican.) Ogden, Oct. 16.—By the decisive score Six of 21 to 0 Ogden High school today decated All Hallows college of Salt Lake, ond; feated All Hallows college of Salt Lake, tieing up with Salt Lake in the interscholastic race. While the score looks one-sided, it overestimates the strength of Ogden. Ogden did all its scoring in the first half, while during the greater part of the second half the ball was on Ogden ground.

After the opening of play the local eleven started the scoring with a drop kick, and following came repeated successful end runs, with an occasional forward pass, all of which netted much ground for Ogden.

All Hallows, though outweighed and outplayed, came back in the second half and punctured the local line time and again, but no consistent gains for

INTEREST KEEN IN VISIT

New York, Oct. 16 .- New York yachts-New York, Oct. 16.—New York yachtsmen learned with interest today that Sir Thomas Lipton was on his way to New York to press his claims for a race for the America's cup. At the yacht club many enthusiasts expressed a hope that the Englishman and his American rivals Whitney's Porkville Belle was unplaced.

OF CUP CHALLENGER would be able to find common ground for a challenge. But officials declared that Sir Thomas would have to challenge under the old rules.

BUENA VISTA NOTES

Yesterday's racing at Buena Vista was and it is safe to say that it was more satisfactory to the large half holiday erowd that witnessed it. Not only did the nublic succeed in landing on the succeed in landing on the stated. sympathy for him that he was reinstated the public succeed in landing on the right ones generally, but, as well, the racing was interesting, as there was contention in most of the events and creditable time was the rule. The afternoon's star performance from a time standpoint was that of Ethon in the handicap. The Pasadena stable's crack demonstrated that, with the possible exception of Glorio, he is in a class by himself in the sprinting division at the local track by picking up 125 pounds and breezing the six and a half furlongs in within a fraction of a second of track record time for the distance. Galves and Meddling Hannah showed in front of him for little more than half a mile, but he ran over them when let down at the top of the stretch and won away off. If W. P. Fine has resumed the training of Glorio and the high-class son of Galveston and Ethon should come together in the Eagles' handicap next Wednesday, it would be an attraction worth seeing.

The old saying that a lame horse—or rather an alleged lame horse—is a dangerous one for bookmakers to take liberties with had an illustration yesterday. On best form, Kerry appeared to hold his field sare in the third race, but a report that the Arkle gelding had two bowed tendons reached the betting ring. On the strength of this talk the layers "loaded up" on him and went from 2 to 1 to 5 to 2 to get in the layers "loaded up" on him and went from 2 to 1 to 5 to 2 to get in the properties of the day, with the exception of the distance. The books in line yesterday failed to lay up anything, as four favorites and a strongly supported second choice got home in front. The only break in favor of the layers came from the second race, in which Lady Adelaide, at a ridiculously false price, came home in front. In the opening event Bardonia and The Mouser were opened at 2 to 1 each, but the strong play settled on the former. Bardonia looked to be winning easily a sixteenth out, but hung at the end, and The Mouser, under a vigorous ride, beat him out in the afternoon's closest finish. Incidentally, the play was not only the heaviest of the meeting, but, as well, the healthiest, as there was action on several horses in each race.
